

WORLD WATCH LIST 2025

SITUATION OF RELIGIOUS FREEDOM FOR CHRISTIANS

VIETNAM

WORLD WATCH LIST NO.
44

LEVELS OF VIOLENCE AND PRESSURE

Each of the six categories is scored out of a maximum of 16.7 points. The categories added together total 100 points (6 x 16.7 = 100).

Key findings

Historical Christian communities (such as Roman Catholic churches) enjoy a certain amount of freedom unless they become politically active, which can lead to imprisonment (e.g., in land-grabbing cases or environmental issues). Where Catholic congregations own large plots of land (e.g., surrounding convents, schools or hospitals) these are sometimes confiscated by the State for development purposes. On rare occasions, when initiated by local party leaders, Catholics can become targets of state interference, as happened in February 2022 when state officials interrupted a Catholic mass. Both non-traditional Protestants and converts from indigenous religions face intensive pressure and violence for their faith, especially in the remote areas of central and northern Vietnam. Most belong to the country's ethnic minorities, like the Hmong, and face social exclusion, discrimination and attacks. Their homes are sometimes destroyed and they are then forced to leave their villages. The attack against policemen and government officials in Dak Lak province on 11 June 2023, although not motivated by religion or persecution-related, illustrates how tensions with the Hmong minority and different tribal groups are simmering and can easily turn violent. Several Protestant Montagnard Christians were indicted, and sentenced to imprisonment in efforts by authorities to hold someone accountable.

Vietnam became a unified state at the end of the US-Vietnam War in 1975 and has remained one of the few remaining Communist states to this day. All power lies with the Communist Party and although there is a National Assembly (not elected freely and fairly), the Politburo (the Communist Party of Vietnam) carries out the main executive duties.

Christians are regarded as unpatriotic and anti-government and, as such, are strictly monitored, censored, and discriminated against. Christians are not only barred from positions of power within the Communist Party but also disqualified from officer ranks in the military, and receive harsh punishments when charged by police. The 2021 elevation of the head of the 'Government Committee of Religious Affairs' (GCRA) to serve as Deputy Minister of the Interior is indicative of high government concern about maintaining control of religion. Vietnam objected strongly to being placed on the US Special

Watch List (SWL) for religious freedom in December 2022. However, a 132-page White Book on Religions and Religious Policy, released in 2023, shows that it is unlikely anything will change for Christians and other religions. In addition, Decree No. 95, which was effective from 30 March 2024, aims to simplify measures to shut down religious organizations and educational institutions as well as curbing local and international fundraising (Morning Star News, 28 February 2024).

The Roman Catholic Church makes up more than 80% of all Christians in Vietnam and while it is following the Vatican in its doctrine, there are subtle and less subtle attempts by the government at influencing it, possibly most visibly in the election of bishops. Protestants are split into many denominations. Two larger state-recognized ones are the Southern Evangelical Church of Vietnam (ECVN-S) and the Evangelical Church of Vietnam North (ECVN-N). Christians generally prefer to stay away from politics, but are nonetheless closely watched by the authorities.

Members of communities in the Central Highlands, many of them Christians from ethnic minorities, are neglected economically and socially and felt this even more during the pandemic crisis. A country expert commented: "The government still considers the Evangelical Church of Christ as a reactionary group. Media, news and state television stated that the people have to "eliminate this church from the community." The government continues to consider the Evangelical Church of Christ as a reactionary group.

How the situation varies by region

Pressure and violence targeting Christians among the ethnic minorities is especially strong in the Central and North West Highlands in the following provinces: Bac Giang, Bac Ninh, Binh Phuoc, Dak Lak, Dak Nong, Dien Bien, Gia Lai, Ha Giang, Ha Nam, Hoa Binh, Kon Tum, Lai Chau, Lam Dong, Lao Cai, Nghe An, Ninh Thuan, Phu Yen, Quang Binh, Quang Ngai, Son La, Thanh Hoa, Tra Vinh and Yen Bai.

Who is affected?

COMMUNITIES OF EXPATRIATE CHRISTIANS

As expatriates, Christians cannot mix with local churches in rural areas, they are involuntarily isolated. This category includes foreign workers from Taiwan, Korea and the Philippines, who face pressure from being strictly monitored.

HISTORICAL CHRISTIAN COMMUNITIES

The Roman Catholic Church and the Evangelical Church of Vietnam are the main historical Christian communities. The former managed to open a Catholic university in 2016, but problems with land-grabbing by authorities and arrests of Catholic activists have increased, and in December 2020 a congress of the ECVN (S) was hindered.

CONVERTS TO CHRISTIANITY

Converts from a Buddhist or Animist background face the most severe violations, not only from the authorities but also from their families, friends and neighbors. The Communist authorities, usually at a local level, treat them particularly suspiciously and hostilely because most of them belong to ethnic minorities.

NON-TRADITIONAL CHRISTIAN COMMUNITIES

Non-traditional Christian communities consist of Evangelical and Pentecostal congregations. They gather in house churches, as many denominations are not registered. They are closely monitored and face discrimination at local levels from the government and society, including difficulties with registration and pressure to join registered churches.

Main sources of persecution and discrimination

COMMUNIST AND POST-COMMUNIST OPPRESSION BLENDED WITH DICTATORIAL PARANOIA

The Communist Party violates the rights of the Christian minority in the central highlands, north-west and north-east regions by harassing them and requiring all religious institutions to be supervised by the government's Committee on Religious Affairs. The government even makes use of local criminals, known as 'Red Flag' groups, whom they tacitly encourage to assault Christians and expropriate church property. The Catholic Church is by far the largest Christian community and is active in highlighting social injustice and environmental issues under Communist rule, which can result in punitive violence and confiscation of church-owned land. Some villages are named "communist village" or "Zero-Christian village." The people there would not allow Christians to live in their village. The government is particularly suspicious of the ethnic minorities who live in the central and northern highlands (also known as "Montagnards"). Many of them are Protestant Christians, whose growth in numbers has reportedly continued.

CLAN OPPRESSION

Communities in tight-knit villages, enforced by village leaders and family members, coerce Christian converts to renounce their faith. In order to maintain the tribe's culture, tribal leaders often exclude Christians from the community, seeing them as traitors to their culture and heritage. The community itself will often react violently against Christian converts and expel them from their villages.

ORGANIZED CORRUPTION AND CRIME

There have been, and still are, incidents of land-grabbing, particularly targeted at the Catholic Church. This occurs mainly in cities, where government officials look for land and property to confiscate, and then sell the land to private developers. Land belonging to the Catholic Church and other ethnic Christian minorities are prime targets. Eviction has often been executed with the help of criminal groups and 'Red Flag' guards, although this has become less visible.

How are men and women differently affected?

WOMEN

Despite having one of the highest female workplace participation rates, women bear an unequal share of domestic work and are considered subservient by society. The country holds socialist ideals of equality, but Confucian values remain and are embedded in school textbooks and reflected in cultural son bias. Within marriages, new Christians face oppression, violence and threats of divorce from their husbands, and are more likely to lose custody of their children when their faith becomes known.

Female typical pressure points:

- Forced divorce
- Violence – physical

MEN

Men often face discrimination and harassment at work, and risk losing their jobs. As men are the primary providers in Vietnam, this paralyzes the whole family economically and weakens their place within society. Christian men, and in particular church leaders, will often be the government’s primary target for arrest and interrogation on faith-related grounds. Once in custody, detainees face harsh treatment, physical beatings, and pressure to renounce their faith. There is also pressure within compulsory military service, with men unable to freely read the Bible or partake in other Christian activities.

Male typical pressure points:

- Economic harassment via business/job/work access
- Imprisonment by government
- Military/militia conscription/service against conscience
- Violence – physical
- Violence – psychological

WWL 5 year trend

WWL Year	Position on Open Doors World Watch List	Persecution rounded score out of 100
2025	44	67
2024	35	68
2023	25	70
2022	19	71
2021	19	72

The overall score declined due to decreases in both violence and pressure. The violence score fell from 7.2 points in WWL 2024 to 5.9, while the average pressure slightly decreased to 12.1 points. This reduction in the violence score can largely be attributed to a decrease in the number of Christians detained and sentenced for faith-related reasons. This trend aligns with perceptions that direct government persecution is diminishing, although persecution from family and community members appears to be increasing. Notably, there is a distinction between rural and urban areas: improvements have been observed in urban regions, which are not reflected in rural areas.

Examples of violence in the reporting period

- 1 March 2024: Three Christians from the Ede minority attending an unregistered church in Dak Lak province were detained for one week by the authorities.
- 8 March 2024: Relatives of Y Bum Bya, a member of the Evangelical Church of Christ of the Western Highlands (ECCWH), found his battered body hanging from a tree with a rope around his neck. He had been ordered to meet with the police, who were planning to return a cell phone they had confiscated from him earlier.
- 28 March 2024: The People’s Court of Dak Lak province sentenced protestant missionary Y Krec Bya to 13 years in prison and five years probation for “sabotaging the unity policy” by organizing online meetings and publishing information that aimed to “cause division between the people and the government” and “between people following different religions”.

WWL Year	Christians killed	Churches or Christian buildings attacked or closed	Christians’ private property damaged or confiscated	Christians internally displaced
2025	1	6	5	20
2024	1	7	10	22

*This table includes only a few categories of faith-based violence during the reporting period - for full results see the violence section of the country’s corresponding WWL Persecution Dynamics. Since many incidents go unreported, the numbers must be understood as minimum figures. In cases where it has been impossible to count exactly, a symbolic round figure (10*, 100* or 1000*) is given which in reality could be significantly higher. The same applies for symbolic numbers 10,000*, 100,000* and 1,000,000*.*

PRIVATE LIFE

In rural areas, discussing one’s faith is dangerous and can lead to violence from the wider community. In cities, slightly more freedom exists, but harassment and questioning by police is common. While conversions are not banned by law, they are strongly opposed. Christianity is seen as foreign and a threat to family and heritage, especially in areas where ancestral worship prevails. Often family members are forced to choose between reconversion from Christianity or eviction and ostracization from family and community.

FAMILY LIFE

Christian children in Vietnam are pressured into attending anti-Christian teaching in the form of Communist doctrine throughout their education. Christian children who belong to unregistered, and sometimes even registered, churches are prevented from attending schools because of their or their parents’ faith, especially in rural areas. Some of those who are able to attend school are often the victims of harassment and bullying from fellow students and school administrators alike. Additionally, converts who are married may be threatened with divorce. It is common for families to disown, evict and cut off support from family members who convert to Christianity.

COMMUNITY LIFE

Tribal communities in hotspot areas assist in the monitoring of Christians. Local authorities encourage the community to restrict Christian groups as these are seen as foreign and dangerous. Christians applying for jobs, and those due for promotion, sometimes experience discrimination and exclusion both in public and private sectors. Christians are forced to leave their villages too. Within the military and police, Christians are not eligible to be selected as officers. In northern Vietnam, state authorities are known to threaten to cancel the healthcare benefits of Christians if they resist state mandates or continue to meet as a church. The OD Field expert explained: “When people who are eligible for the “poor certificate” status, which includes social welfare, health care and other benefits become Christians, the local authorities often consider them as not economically poor anymore and take back the poor certificate. In some areas, they even say: “Because you are Christians now, let the Church take care of your life.”

NATIONAL LIFE

Vietnam follows Communist ideology strictly, and all other beliefs are opposed. The government does not respond to registration applications or approve requests for religious activities within the stipulated time period, if at all, and often does not specify reasons for refusals as required by law. Members of the Communist Party are not allowed to profess a religion, and commissioned military officers are not permitted to be religious believers. As the field expert explained, “Christians are not allowed to work as government officers, so they must give up their faith. According to the qualification of a government officer, he/she must have “zero-Christianity” within his/her extended family up to 3 generations. If a government officer converts to Christianity or even is “being too friendly with Christians,” he/she can be demoted or dismissed. Even if he still manages to stay in the position, he will be cut off benefits and cannot be promoted.”

In the media, Christians are portrayed as trying to reinstate colonial ideology and are accused of disruptive and anti-government activities. When a Catholic priest dared to criticize the setting up of a COVID-19 vaccine fund and calls for ordinary citizens to contribute to it, the official media immediately called for him to be “handled”. Perpetrators of violence against Christians are almost never brought to trial.

CHURCH LIFE

Churches are monitored and occasionally meetings are disrupted. Churches are required by law to register their activities with the authorities. The field expert adds: “Additionally, the government requires the Church to submit a list of Church members. With the list, they go from house to house in uniforms to “clarify” if they belong to that Church. This would scare (young) Christians from admitting their faith and membership of the Church. “Obtaining Christian materials in bulk can be risky especially when the materials are imported or do not have prior approval from the government. All published material requires approval by the government and all imports are highly restricted. However, obtaining small numbers of Christian material is possible.

Catholic and Protestant church leaders and activists are often arrested or forced into exile for criticism of the government or advocacy on behalf of human rights. The new decree No 95, even though aimed at simplifying and streamlining procedures, will not make life for churches easier, neither in registration nor in reporting.

The new decree No 95, though aimed at simplifying and streamlining procedures, will not make life for churches easier, neither in registration nor in reporting.

International obligations & rights violated

Vietnam has committed to respect and protect fundamental rights under the following international treaties:

1. International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights (ICCPR)
2. International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights (ICESCR)
3. Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment (CAT)
4. Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women (CEDAW)
5. Convention on the Rights of the Child (CRC)

Vietnam is not fulfilling its international obligations by regularly violating or failing to protect the following rights of Christians:

- Christians are harassed in the workplace and face discrimination because of their faith (ICCPR Art. 26)
- Christians are killed because of their faith (ICCPR Art. 6.1)
- Christians are arrested for speaking up for their rights (ICCPR Arts. 9 and 19)
- If arrested, Christians experience beatings and pressure to renounce their faith (ICCPR Arts. 18 and 10)
- Christian children are ostracized at school, pressured to abandon their faith and their medical needs are often neglected on the basis of their faith (ICCPR Art. 18; CRC Arts. 14 and 24)
- Christian female converts are forced to marry non-Christian men and pressured to renounce their faith (ICCPR Art. 23; CEDAW Art. 16 and ICESCR Art. 10)

Situation of other religious minorities

As is typical under Communist regimes, Vietnamese authorities seek to keep all religious groups under control. Those under particular scrutiny alongside Christians are Cao Dai, Hoa Hao Buddhists and Muslims. Those who organize under government-controlled councils are left largely alone other than censorship of what is preached. In the words of Human Rights Watch (HRW 2024 Vietnam country chapter): “...Unrecognized religious groups—including independent Cao Dai, Hoa Hao, Christian, and Buddhist groups—face constant surveillance, harassment, and intimidation. Followers of independent religious groups are subject to public criticism, forced renunciation of faith, pretrial detention, interrogation, torture, and imprisonment...”

Open Doors in Vietnam

Open Doors works through local church partners to come alongside Vietnamese believers when they suffer persecution for choosing to follow Christ; physical attacks and expulsion from their families and communities are some examples that believers encounter. Our interventions are done through presence, relief and practical aid, and advocacy. OD also works through local partners to strengthen persecuted believers in Vietnam through the following efforts:

- Provision of Christian materials and literature
- Leadership training
- Discipleship programs
- Socio-economic development programs
